“ Today we gather to celebrate one of the most wonderful people who ever lived. I already knew that she was the best grandmother to me and great-grandmother to my own children but everyone was sad to hear of her passing. They all commented on what a nice person she was.

It was impossible to try not to cry for my loss today but I know that she wouldn't want any of us to be sad. She is going to be at this celebration of her life listening to all of the happy memories she created and I know that she will be with us, always.
